715-MILE TRIP MADE BY HUGE GERMAN PLANE

LANDS AT CANARY ISLANDS

Next Hop in Voyage Headed for New York Will Be 845 Miles.

By The Associated Press.

LAS PALMAS, CANARY ISLANDS, Jan. 31—The German seaplane DO-X landed on the harbor here at 3:10 p. m. (10:10 a. m. Marion time).

The big ship settled down in the harbor with a great roar of motors which brought everybody within hearing distance to the water front. She had completed this first lap of her projected flight across the South Atlantic in almost exactly seven hours. The start was made at Lisbon, Portugal.

Fog between Lisbon and Madeira island made a change in her original plans and Commander Friedrich Christiansen, instead of dropping a mail bag at Funchal as he had intended, eliminated the Madeira detour and came straight here.

A radio message sent an hour before the arrival said that the trip was proceeding on schedule without untoward incident.

Nineteen persons, by far the largest number ever to attempt a long ocean flight in a heavier-than-air machine, were aboard the craft.

The first leg of the flight was 715 miles. The DO-X will stay here at least overnight while her engines are checked. Then she will take off for the Cape Verde islands, 845 miles away. The long Atlantic hop begins from there.

It will be to Fernando Do Noronha, Brazil, 1,230 miles distant. A short stop will be made and the craft will proceed to the mainland at Natal and down the coast to Rio De Janeiro. From Rio De Janeiro the plane will continue to New York.

The ship is commanded by Captain Friedrich Christiansen. Clarence Schildhauer, American, is second pilot and navigator for the trip.

Passengers include: Stanislas Krakau, personal representative of King Alexander of Jugoslavia; Hans Kurt Stradthagen, manager of the Kondor Air Line at Bahia, Brazil; Major Giacomo Brenta of Italy; Admiral Gago Coutinho, Portuguese aviator, and Fritz Hammer of the Kondor Air Line.

The ship, a 12-motored craft, carried 180,000 letters and postcards in addition to its store of supplies which included tinned meats, a small quantity of beverages, and enough American chewing gum to last until the end of the voyage.

"Sea Eagle," the mascot canary which started with the Do-X on her first trans-Atlantic attempt last fall, died a week ago and Commander Christiansen substituted another, brought from a bird store yesterday.

At the last moment Lieutenant Cardoso Oliviera of the Portuguese air force was eliminated as a passenger, in favor of several extra drums of fuel.

SHELTON EXTENDS TAX PAYMENT TIME

Treasurer Grants 10 Days More for Collection; Total Below Year Ago.

A further extension of time for the payment of taxes was granted by County Treasurer Bert J. Shelton today when he announced that payments may be made until Feb. 10 without being subject to the 10 per cent penalty.

Today was the end of the second time extension, the first having expired on Jan. 20.

The average daily collection this year is approximately $250 higher than a year ago, although this year's collection was begun seven days late. Figures given out by Shelton today show that collections have been averaging $20,070 each day as compared to $19,820 a year ago.

These averages are based on the total of $682,511.58 which had been collected at the close of business yesterday, and the $812,859.66 which had been collected on the same date last year. This year's collection covers 34 days and that of a year ago, 41 days.

Shelton's office today was kept busy receiving payments and the total was expected to pass the $700,000 mark before the day's business is completed.

Cage Team Collects 109 Points for New Record

By The Associated Press.

WILMINGTON, O., Jan. 31—A new basketball scoring record was established here last night when Wayne Township High school defeated Clarksville, 110 to 9, indicating that Wayne is awful good or Clarksville is awful punk.

It's a little bit of both, according to observers of the Clinton county league championship race, in which Wayne is a strong contender.

A little fellow named Henry, Wayne forward, achieved something at the expense of Clarksville, worth remembering. He bagged 62 points in the game.

CONGRESS LINES UP FOR BATTLE

Extra Session at Stake in Deadlock Over Relief Legislation.

CONFERENCE SET MONDAY

Bitter Fight Looms After House Rejects $25,000,000 Senate Proposal.

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31—An extra session of congress, staunchly opposed by the administration, was at stake in the deadlock between the senate and the President on relief legislation.

Although the well-managed Republican house stood firmly behind the chief executive, Democratic leaders of the senate were confident theirs was the whip hand.

The house late yesterday rejected, by a decisive vote, the senate's proposed appropriation of $25,000,000 to be distributed to drouth sufferers through the Red Cross. Its Republican leaders said they would fight the proposal to the bitter end, even at the expense of a special session.

Shortly before, the senate Democrats had issued an ultimatum announcing they would force an extra session unless their relief program is enacted.

In the new congress, the Democrats will be almost able to capture control. The balance of power will lie with the independent Republicans. This group, for the most part favors the Democratic program. By blocking any one of the regular appropriation bills, the Democrats can bring about the extra session.

The $25,000,000 Red Cross fund, which the executive committee of that organization has announced will not be accepted, was passed by the senate as an amendment to the interior department appropriation bill. It will go into conference between the senate and house on Monday.

THREE PERSONS ARE VICTIMS OF FLAMES

Baltimore Rooming House Destroyed; Woman Missing, Two Men Hurt.

By The Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, Md., Jan. 31 — Trapped on the fourth floor of a Charles street rooming house by an early morning fire two women and a man were burned to death today. Another woman was missing. Two men were dangerously injured when they jumped into the street.

The blaze started on the third floor of the four-story structure and driven by a brisk north wind soon enveloped the whole building. The women to lose their lives were identified as Mrs. Arthur Tucker and Miss Alverta Claggett, who occupied separate apartments. The man who perished was D. Howard, of Baltimore. The missing woman was Miss Marcella Roberts.

TRIPLE EXECUTION FIGURES

GEN. BUTLER'S TRIAL TO BE SPECTACULAR

Members of Court Will Appear in Glittering Military Dress.

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31—The glitter of gold braid and the flash of polished swords will add color to the court martial of Major General Smedley D. Butler.

All members of the court which tries the outspoken marine for remarks he made about Premier Mussolini of Italy must appear in the full dress uniform of the navy or marines.

Six rear admirals and one major general of the marines will hear the testimony, decide whether Butler is guilty and impose sentence if he is convicted. Secretary Adams then will review the case and it might possibly go to President Hoover.

Testimony Optional

Butler may or may not testify. If he does he will be subject to cross-examination. He may leave his defense to his lawyers, among whom will be his friend, Major Henry Leonard, a former marine now a Washington attorney.

Once before Leonard came to Butler's aid, but amid a hail of bullets in the Boxer rebellion in China, instead of the verbal clashes of a courtroom. Leonard rescued Butler, who was wounded and helpless. In doing so he received a bullet wound that forced amputation of an arm.

Major Leonard, small and wiry, also has some of the vivacity and forcefulness of his friend, but less of the outspokenness that more than once has made trouble for the general.

John W. Davis, New York lawyer, and 1924 Democratic nominee for President, may head General Butler's counsel.

Outline of Procedure

General Butler will plead guilty or not guilty when the trial opens. Prosecution and defense will introduce their witnesses and each side will have an opportunity for rebuttal.

Butler then may state what he considers extenuating circumstances in the case.

Then will follow the final arguments by both sides, and the board will retire to decide on a verdict, which must be unanimous. If the sentence includes dismissal from the service, it must be approved by the President.

Packed House

(Will Rogers Special)

FORT WORTH, Tex., Jan. 31—These people in the drouth-stricken country ain't waiting for the government to relieve 'em. Their well-to-do are helping their less fortunate themselves.

At a matinee yesterday in Wichita Falls, we played to 9,100. At Fort Worth last night, the cowman's paradise, we played to 18,000. At my breakfast matinee Thursday morning at Abilene, at 10 o'clock, got $6,500, and every cent of that is net.

People in America have got the money and will give if they know the need is there; and these people know it.

Say, we got a real show. Frank Hawks is our monologist. National Broadcasting loaned me the "Revellers," the greatest singing quartet in America; Jimmy Rodgers, the Victor artist yodler, and Chester Byers, world's champion roper.

But quit writing for dates, we are all filled.

Will Rogers

Urge to Return to Crime Scene Ends in Arrest

By The Associated Press.

PAINESVILLE, O., Jan. 31—The peculiar urge that makes men return toward the scene of a crime, delivered LeRoy Duty, 31, of Ironton, into the hands of authorities here today to face an indictment charging him with first degree murder of his wife.

Deputy Sheriffs Charles Cardina and Orson Snell, who arrested Duty, said he confessed killing his wife on May 4 in Ironton, that he afterward escaped to Australia and China, and finally returned to Ohio, "because he did not want to live any more."

Duty told the deputies, they said, that he killed his wife after "fair warning." His mother-in-law had been giving him trouble, he alleged, and he wanted to move his wife to Baltimore to escape her.

The wife refused to move with her husband. Duty said the next day he again asked his wife to go with him and again she refused. Then he told her:

WARNS DEMOCRATS TO MAP PROGRAM

Senator Copeland Sees Victory in 1932, but Says Party Must Get Results.

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31— Blaming economic distress on the Republican administration, Senator Copeland, Democrat of New York, today predicted a Democratic victory in 1932. He called upon his party, however, to present a "workable" program in order that it may deserve victory and make it lasting.

Speaking before the national Democratic club, Copeland said "all informed persons look upon the present administration at Washington as a failure."

"Today's economic distress," he said, "is the fault of the Republican administration. I do not say and never have said that President Hoover brought on the panic, nor that he is responsible for what happened originally. That would be silly.

"But I do say it has been impossible to deal effectively with the situation because the Republican administration has denied, belittled and dodged the truth. There has been no frank admission of the facts.

'Consequently, no effective plans have been presented to mitigate the situation. Not only has there been a failure to present such plans, but every device has been used to defeat the honest efforts of the minority to assist our suffering citizens."

Copeland said, however, the Democratic party should not win in 1932 "by default."

"Unless we go into office with a program, with the expectation of bettering the economic and social condition of our distressed country, there can be no hope of performance in our hold upon the government.

One Dead, One Hurt as Fire Sweeps Apartment

By International News Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31—One man was killed, another probably fatally injured and nine had narrow escapes from death today when fire wrecked the two upper floors of a five-story apartment house in Brooklyn. Two hundred persons were driven to the street in frigid weather in their nightclothes.

The dead man was William Kingsley, who stepped out of the wrong window of his apartment in trying to reach a fire escape and plunged five stories to the street. He died a short while later in a hospital from his injuries.

1,000 REBELS KILLED

SHANGHAI, Jan. 31 — Chinese press dispatches today said Nationalist government troops had surprised 3,000 bandits in southwest Honan province, killing 1,000 and rescuing 500 of their captives who were held for ransom.

TRIPLE EXECUTION OF WILCOX KILLERS SPEEDILY ENACTED

With Emotions Hidden, Sites, Massa and McCartney Go to Chair, Lips Sealed in Silence; Have Last Meal Together.

RELATIVES CLAIM BODIES, PLAN BURIALS

By The Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 31—Companions in crime, Fred Massa, Earl Sites and Kenneth McCartney were separated in death today—their lives exacted by the state as the penalty demanded of killers.

The men, all less than 30 years of age, died in the electric chair at Ohio penitentiary last night for the murder of Ralph Wilcox, Galion filling station attendant, whom they shot down during a holdup on June 27, 1930.

Hiding their emotions, the slayers paid without a whimper for their misdeeds, each walking with head erect and their lips sealed in silence. They were led one by one from a little room adjoining the death chamber where they had eaten their last meal together.

The call of the executioner came shortly after 7:30 p. m. Sites was the first to make the death march. He was pronounced dead at 7:41½. McCartney followed at 7:50 and Massa died at 7:59. And the state had carried out the second triple electrocution in the history of the Ohio penitentiary.

Sites walked into the room on the arm of Father O'Brien, the Catholic chaplain, carrying the cross of the faith he had embraced earlier in the day. His head was high, but his eyes were drooped and his face pale. He did not falter as the guards placed him in the chair, and stared at the floor as the straps and electrodes were adjusted.

Views Crowd Hurriedly

Raising his eyes just before the black mask hid his face, Sites cast a hurried glance around the little room that was jammed with witnesses and newspaper men. Then the guards stepped back and a moment later the electricity surged through the doomed man's body. Two charges were applied before he was pronounced dead by Dr. George W. Kyle, the prison physician. The same procedure was followed for the other two and all three men were dead within half an hour.

Massa was born in the Catholic faith and he also was led to the chair by Father O'Brien. McCartney, a Protestant, was accompanied by Rev. K. E. Hall, the Protestant chaplain.

McCartney's face was gaunt with the mental torture of the days preceding the execution. His appearance was more than of wonder than of fear or remorse. He smiled slightly at Col. Walter Collins, of the Columbus Volunteers of America, who had given him spiritual condolence during the last hours of his life.

McCartney's eyes wandered over

MRS. HILL, PASTORS VISIT CONDEMNED

Among the last to visit Earl Sites, Kenneth R. McCartney and Fred J. Massa, the three Mansfield men who were electrocuted last night at the Ohio penitentiary were Mrs. H. E. Hill of West Columbia street, Rev. W. Martell George, pastor of Wesley M. E. church, and Rev. S. F. Porter, pastor of Emmanuel Baptist church, who spent a part of yesterday in a prayer and song service with them.

All were calm and assured their visitors of having made their peace with their Maker. Sites, a Catholic, took no part in the service but assured Mrs. Hill that everything was "all right" when she bade him goodby, she said today.

Mrs. Hill, who spends a great deal of her time with condemned prisoners at the penitentiary, was instrumental in the conversion of the men.

OHIO ASSEMBLY ENDS 4TH WEEK

Appropriation Measures Only Completed Part of Program.

RELIEF BILLS FOREMOST

Progress Expected Next Week Toward Definite Law Enactments.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 31 — Four weeks of law-making by the Ohio legislature has brought forth no new laws except emergency appropriation measures to provide funds to keep the state government going.

But the present assembly is running about true to form as legislatures go, in taking about a month to get to functioning properly. The coming week should see some progress made toward shaping legislation for final enactment.

Relief measures are expected to occupy the attention of lawmakers in the main for some time, but prohibition and taxes also will hold a prominent place as the session moves along. Emergency legislation to enable cities to provide funds for unemployment is expected to be whipped into shape for final enactment by the latter part of the week.

Governor White has indicated a willingness to confer with the legislative leaders on plans for aiding unemployed and drouth sufferers and it is anticipated a general program for relief will be worked out soon. A resolution by Senator Roy J. Gillen providing for a committee to confer with the governor and obtain all available data on relief necessity is pending in the senate.

The taxation program still is in the discussion stage with the majority and minority at sharp division on method of approaching the question. The senate majority is on record as having the governor participate in forming tax bills through membership which he is invited to appoint on a committee for that purpose. The senate minority is on record favoring leaving the governor out of it. The house of representatives has not yet stated its position on the question, but is likely to do so during the coming week.

Eastern New York Digs Out of Six-Inch Snow

By International News Service.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 31—Eastern New York today was digging itself out of a six inch snow blanket, one of the heaviest falls of the winter. The wind piled drifts six feet deep in the rural sections, hampering bus service. Trains from the west were running from 40 minutes to an hour late.

Chaplin Gets Big Ovation in New Anti-Talkie Film

By The Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES Calif., Jan. 31—Adulation of the star-gazing multitudes of Hollywood and Los Angeles rose to a near-riotous frenzy last night at one of the most spectacular premieres ever accorded a motion picture here.

The talkies yielded the spotlight to the first important non-dialogue movie Hollywood has produced in three years, and a little pantomiming tramp proved to the satisfaction of a distinguished first-night audience his art—put pantomime—was beyond the need of microphonic assistance.

The occasion was the premier showing of "City Lights," the picture on which Charles Chaplin, alone of all Hollywood deaf to the thunder of the talkie revolution, has been working for nearly three years. Thousands of men, women and children assembled before the theater and police had to battle to keep back the crowds.

Chaplin's car arrived moving inch by inch. The star escorted Miss Georgia Hale, his leading lady in a former picture, with Prof. and Frau Albert Einstein, and Dr. and Mrs. Robert A. Millikan as his guests. Those seeing the picture acclaimed the Chaplin genius of old.

Not a word of dialogue is spoken from the screen, but sound effects and a continuous synchronized musical score accompany the action. Chaplin has used sound to enhance.

Shooting Followed Attempted Holdup

Seven months ago three men stopped their automobile at a little Galion filling station operated by Ralph Wilcox. Last night these same men died in the electric chair.

It was on the night of June 27 that Wilcox was shot when he resisted the efforts of three men to rob the gasoline station. Earl Sites, Kenneth McCartney and Fred Massa, the trio executed last night, were arrested in Mansfield July 26 in connection with the abduction of Miss Emma Witchey the night before. They also were suspected of kidnaping E. O. Conn of Mansfield, whose automobile was used in the the holdup at Galion.

They were definitely linked with the Galion holdup when taken to the hospital where Wilcox was making a desperate bid for life. He identified the men as the ones who visited his station that night.

Identified By Victim

Three days after being identified by Wilcox, they confessed to the shooting, the Mansfield crimes and numerous other robberies. Efforts of Crawford county authorities to have them sent to Bucyrus for prosecution failed and they were bound over to the grand jury under $5,000 bond each for the attack on the Mansfield woman.

After being indicted on 27 counts, the men first pleaded not guilty. They then changed their pleas and

HARDING JOLTED FROM SECOND PLACE

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK
Sports Editor, The Star

HARDING High's scarlet clad hardwood warriors were rudely jolted out of a deadlock for second place in the N. C. O. league last night as the Shelby Whippets came to life in the second half and plastered the Presidents with a 29 to 12 beating on the court of The Star auditorium. The Harding defeat gave the Marion school a record of two games won and three lost and puts the Presidents in a tie for third place with the Mansfield Tygers.

The Shelby victory allows the Whippets to retain their partial hold on second place for at least another week. Galion shares the runner up post.

A Good Start

The Harding quintet inaugurated the hostilities against Shelby with a fast moving attack that put the Whippets on the defensive at the start of the game. A field goal by Ling and a quartet of charity tosses put the Harding tossers in the lead by a 6-2 margin at the end of the first period.

In the second frame, things took a decided different turn. Shelby launched an attack that nearly wrecked the Harding defenses. The Whippets scored five points while the locals were able to gather exactly no markers for the entire quarter. The score at the half was 7 to 6 for the winners.

Away They Went

What little of the Harding defenses were not torn apart by Shelby in the second period were literally ripped to shreds in the third frame. With big Jim Miller center de-luxe, playing in an almost flawless manner, the Whippets dumped in scores from all angles to collect 11 points in the third period. Harding was able to add but two to its total in the third period.

Harding attempted to reorganize its defenses in the final period to cope with the barrage of Shelby buckets but failed completely to stem the rush of the Whippets. Shelby parted the meshes for 11 more points in the final period while the losers could get but four.

The dash and cohesion which has marked Harding's play in the previous two contests was sadly missing in the Shelby conflict. Except for the first period, Shelby had the Presidents on defense a large share of the time.

He's Plenty Good

Jim Miller, the boy who has been ballyhooed as the leading pivot man in the league, lived up to advance notices. He played a bang-up game on defense, holding his opponent, Jack Ling, well in check. Miller did not start the game, but played a large part of it.

He was admirably supported by Gus Culbertson, the leading scorer of the league. Culbertson looped in a total of four fielders and five charity throws for 13 points.

Davey Merkel, Harding's dynamic forward turned in the best exhibition for the losers although he was not up to his usual form. Jack Ling, who has been pacing Harding for the last two weeks was bottled effectively by Shelby.

ASHLAND RETAINS UNBLEMISHED MARK

Bucyrus Fades in Second Half To Lose to Galion Orangemen.

ASHLAND'S Hilltoppers maintained the only clean record in the N. C. O. circuit by defeating Mansfield, 23 to 22, in a desperately fought battle on the Ashland floor. Ashland now boasts a mark of five straight victories and no defeats, to have a clean hold on the top post.

The Galion Orangemen administered the fifth consecutive beating to the Bucyrus Redmen, beating the tail-enders, 31 to 13. Galion now shares second place with Shelby while Bucyrus continues to hold undisputed possession of the lowest post.

Bucyrus furnished some unexpected first half opposition to the Galion Orangemen but wilted in the third and fourth stanzas and allowed the McClintock coached outfit to romp through to an easy 31 to 13 win.

Galion took a 11 to 5 lead over the eventual losers by the end of the first period but Bucyrus smothered the Orangemen in the second frame, running their score to 11 points and holding Galion scoreless for the period.

The Orangemen came back in the third frame with renewed vigor and swamped Bucyrus with a volley of shots that netted 11 markers for the quarter. Bucyrus did not score in the third frame.

One field goal was all the losers could add in the last frame while Galion was boosting its total nine points to bring the final score to 31 to 13.

Hoekstra of Galion collected the largest total score with five goals and five free throws for 15 points.

Ashland's cagers answered the quest of how they would perform without the services of Matthews and Rybolt, by edging out a single point victory over Mansfield. Mansfield took the lead over the Stanmen in the opening period, collecting 10 points to 8 for Ashland.

Ashland opened up in the second frame and brought the count to 14 to 13 in Mansfield's favor at half time.

The Hilltoppers advanced into the lead in the third period, leading at the three-quarter mark 20 to 17.

The final period was close with the score deadlocked on several occasions. Ashland finally broke the tie in the final minutes of play to gain the slim margin of victory.

SPORTS

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK

IT was reported to me from a quite reliable source last night preceding the Shelby game that Jim Miller, the clever Whippet pivot man had been in the hospital on Thursday for observation on account of threatened appendicitis. Miller was alleged to be in no condition to play against Harding. In fact there was some doubt as to whether or not he would be able to hobble around on the court at all for a very long part of the game. He might manage to get in the path of a few Harding plays but it was probable he would do most of his work picking up splinters on the sideline bench.

Miller may have been in the hospital. There is no reason to believe he wasn't. But if he had appendicitis and was still able to play the kind of a game he did I hope the whole Harding team is stricken with the malady before next Friday night. There would be no stopping them.

The first half of the race is over. If the schedule makers had abided by the same type schedule for this year as has been in vogue in the N. C. O. league for the last several years Ashland would be celebrating the winning today of another pennant. The Starmen are out in front of the pack by a good margin—but the race is only half over now.

As it looks now the Hilltoppers have an excellent chance of going through the season with the best record in the circuit. It is not nearly so certain though that they will not have at least one defeat.

Whoever manages to be the eventual winner in the N. C. O. circuit, the advantages of the double round is already obvious. Teams that are improving will be given a chance to hang up some victories . . . or else take some more beatings.

As far as Harding and Mansfield are concerned the new arrangement should meet with hearty approval. The basketball teams of each of these schools was "just another team to the first of the season but now show promise of developing into fairly strong aggregations. The second round will give them an opportunity to take another shot at the leaders of the league. The extra games may only mean extra beatings but they will at least remove the cause for the old ahhl "If we could only play them again they'd never beat us." Yep, it's a good idea.

Rome—Italy's champion pedestrian, Armando Valente, has broken the Italian record for the fifteen mile walk with a mark of 1 hour, 59 minutes, 54 1-5 seconds. The previous Italian record time was of 2 hours, 1 minute and a half.

ST. MARY'S LOSES

Bellevue Beats Marion Irish 20-18 in Ragged Game.

The Marion St. Mary's basketball team lost a poorly played contest to Bellevue St. Mary's last night on the Bellevue court, 20 to 13. The contest was ragged from start to finish, the players of both teams performing in an erratic manner most of the time.

The Marion five trailed throughout the game although Bellevue never held a very much of a margin.

CALEDONIA BEATEN IN OVERTIME FRAY WITH WALDO QUINT

Pleasant Takes Both Ends of Twin Program from LaRue Teams.

BY BOB BYRD

PLEASANT Township boys and girls had little difficulty last night in downing LaRue's representatives on the LaRue court, the Pleasant boys winning 31 to 4 and girls emerging on the long end of a 28 to 12 score.

Cooper, Pleasant forward satellite added another flock of points to her imposing total, scoring 16 points. Cooper scored double the number of points for any other player for either team. Smith of LaRue was second high with eight points.

For the boys' game, Schneiderer was high scorer with 10 points. Pleasant allowed LaRue to hit the net for only one field goal in the game.

Waldo and Caledonia boys battled through four periods of furious play to a deadlocked score of 24-24 at the end of the regular playing time.

In the overtime period Larry Conklin dropped a pair of field goals through for Waldo and Gerfen added a charity toss while Caledonia was able to collect but a pair of points. The final score gave Waldo a 29 to 26 victory.

The Waldo girls made it two for their school by handing the Caledonia femmes the short end of 28 to 24 score. Despite the fact that her team lost, S. Timson of Caledonia was high scorer of the contest with 16 points.

The Claridon-Martel games which were booked for last night on the Martel court were postponed. They will be played tonight on the Martel court.

BERG IS WINNER

Whitechapel Whirlwind Pounds Out Decision Over Herman Perlick.

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31—Herman Perlick, one-half of a twin pugilistic firm from Kalamazoo, Mich., soon should be convinced that he cannot whip Jack (Kid) Berg, the Whitechapel whirlwind of the lightweights.

Herman, whose twin brother, Henry, also is a lightweight of some pretensions, stepped into the ring with Berg for the third time last night and for the third time Berg pounded out a decision victory.

Two Games Tonight in Ohio Cage Conference

By United Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 31—Two games will be played in the Ohio basketball conference tonight which probably will serve only to increase the leadership margin of Wooster and Mount Union colleges.

Wooster, which has won six straight games, will play Case at Cleveland. Mount Union, holder of five conference victories, will meet Kent State college at Kent. Neither Case nor Kent appears strong enough to stop the league leaders.

Although the over-stuffed Ohio conference does not recognize an official champion, the technical championship may be decided next Thursday night when Wooster clashes with Mount Union at Alliance.

MARKET ASPECT NOT SO BRIGHT

First Month of New Year Shows Little Reason for Encouragement.

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31—The stock market ended the first month of the year today with a rather sallow, convalescent complexion, in contrast to the flush of enthusiasm with which January began.

The market was distinctly heavy, with numerous losses of a point or two in prominent issues, and wider declines in some of the more mercurial shares. The closing price level, as measured by the averages, was in the main only a point or two above the levels reached in the New Year's rally of Jan. 2.

Auburn and Worthington continued to fluctuate erratically. The former dropped nearly 6, then regained almost half of its loss. Worthington dropped nearly 4, then reduced its loss to less than a point. Chemicals were rather heavy. Dupont, Columbia Carbon, U. S. Industrial Alcohol and Allied Chemical finished 2 to 3 points lower. Other shares off about 2 points included Westinghouse, Atchison, Eastman, Johns Manville, and Underwood Elliott. Shares losing about a point included U. S. Steel, American Can, American Power & Light, Bethlehem, Stone & Webster, Radio, and Union Pacific. North American, General Electric, and General Motors were off only fractionally, and American Telephone closed about steady. General Railway Signal was a firm spot up 2. Sales for the two-hour session were about 800,000 shares.

The week-end estimates of steel production in the Youngstown area for next week indicated that the output would hold about steady at slightly less than 50 per cent of aggregate capacity.

CORN PRICES HIT NEW LOWS

Warm Weather Causes Values To Decline in Chicago Pit.

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 31—Overturned by stop-loss selling, all deliveries of corn reached new low price records today. Official reports showed that the month here had been the third warmest January ever known. With feed requirements lessened, corn buying was at a minimum and the market dropped to more than 40 cents under the season's top level. Opening ⅛ to ½ cents off, corn subsequently underwent further downturns. Wheat started at ¼ decline to ¾ advance, and later held near to the initial range.

Forecasts pointed to above-normal temperatures as the rule in the corn belt next week, and relatively little snow or rain under such circumstances, feed use of corn promised no immediate enlargement, and shipping call here gave scant signs of increase. Primary receipts were 881,000 bushels, compared with 698,000 a week back and 1,070,000 on the corresponding day of 1930. Arrivals in Chicago totaled 129 cars, against 122 a week ago and 272 at this time last year.

Wheat was bearishly effective by continued big domestic receipts. The aggregate arrivals at primary centers were 1,114,000 bushels, compared with 1,057,000 a week ago and 698,000 a year back. Slackening of export business in North American wheat also was a bear influence, together with Liverpool advices of free offerings from Argentina and Australia. Oats were steadied by signs of persistent consumer demand.

Provisions duplicated the action of hog values.

The Beauty

SUNSHINE GIVES YOU... is skin deep

WARM, vital, midsummer sunshine is Nature's own beautifier. Its ultra-violet rays combining with under-skin substances develop Vitamin D potency in your body . . . toning up the system . . . bestirring the blood.

Your skin takes on the glow of health . . . natural beauty from within, not a mere surface imitation.

But you are in the sun so little nowadays! And in winter the clearest sunshine you can get contains only about one-twentieth as much ultra-violet as June noon sunlight! No wonder so many complexions are sun-starved!

Science now enables you to satisfy that skin need—in winter as in summer . . . day or night—with the General Electric Sunlamp.

Its ultra-violet radiations are similar in effect to those of the noon-day summer sun. You can have their full benefit by attaching the General Electric Sunlamp's cord at any ordinary A. C. light socket. Use the General Electric Sunlamp's beam in moderation just as you used sunshine in June. Your skin will respond now as it did then.

General Electric Sunlamp is good for the whole family — aiding children to grow straight-limbed and strong . . . giving adults the relaxation and renewed vigor they found last summer on beaches and golf courses.

Come in today and see the General Electric Sunlamp. There are four models finished in statuary bronze or ivory-white.

Choosing Rightly

By The Schaffner-Queen Co.

Suddenly confronted with a need for the services of a funeral director, one is likely to feel more or less bewildered and helpless.

It is vitally important that every detail of the funeral service be carried through with exactness and thorough proficiency. There must be a sympathetic understanding of the needs in each individual case. Simplicity and quiet dignity must be maintained.

Yet the average person is totally inexperienced in arranging for these details.

At such a time, choose a funeral director who is competent and dependable—one entirely worthy of your confidence. He will deem it a privilege to serve you, and endeavor, by quiet and unobtrusive service, to lighten in some small measure "the burden of sorrow in the hour of grief."

EGGS LOW HERE

Prices Set 20 Year January Record in Local Markets.

The drop of egg prices to a range of 22 to 26 cents a dozen was the outstanding development in retail market prices during the week, a checkup today shows.

Some grocers were retailing eggs for as little as 21 cents a dozen, the lowest January prices in 20 years. Lack of demand for eggs is given by grocers as the cause of the oversupply of eggs on the market at present.

Shipment of carload lots of tangerines, grapefruit and oranges from Florida has enabled Marion grocers to cut prices on these citrus fruits to as little as five and six cents a pound. The fruit is not crated nor sorted, but is shipped in bulk.

Fresh grown vegetables are plentiful and popular.

Pilgrim Holiness Church Is Nearing Completion

Congregation Erecting New House of Worship on Bennett Street at Cost of $25,000; Auditorium To Seat 500 Persons; Dimensions 39 by 76 Feet.

From a small mission in 1913, to a congregation that is building a church appraised at $25,000 is the record of First Pilgrim Holiness church now located at York and Waterloo street.

The new church home on Bennett street will be completed this spring, after a year's time spent in building. Members of the church and friends outside the congregation have contributed their time to the work, aside from the labor employed.

The brick structure is 39½ feet wide by 78 feet deep, and when completed the main auditorium will seat approximately 500. Rough carpentry work has been completed and the building has been roofed.

Buy Lot First

Six years ago the lot on Bennett street was bought and the congregation bided its time until the treasury showed a balance large enough to start the work with confidence in its completion.

The face brick of which it is built and all the rough lumber was bought and paid for before work began on the structure.

When completed the main floor will consist of the main auditorium with a balcony and two small rooms at each side of the vestibule. The basement, which is lined with the same face brick of which the outer walls were built, includes one large room, three smaller rooms for Sunday school purposes and the heating and coal rooms.

Brown Starts Work

Work on the church was begun during the ministry of Rev. C. M. Brown, whose resignation was accepted recently by his congregation. He came here almost nine years ago and was the pastor when the lot on which the new church is being erected, was bought.

Plans for the interior decoration have not been completed, and at present the building committee is considering leaded glass for the windows.

The building committee, in whose hands all plans and specifications have been placed, is made up of Virgil O. Shaw, Fred Osborne, church treasurer, and James Thomas.

The Cure for Hard Times

A SERMONETTE

BY REV. H. E. WILLIAMSON, Pastor Oakland Evangelical Church.

FRANTIC efforts are being made by statesmen and industrial leaders to solve the unemployment situation. Seven million persons are without jobs in the U. S. A. Think of all that involves. But the solution has not been reached. We seem to be just beating the air and some say we will not reach the bottom until the end of 1931. Many men are thinking about this matter.

Hear what Mr. Edison, who does not claim to be a Christian, has to say when asked by Roger Babson what the next great invention would be. He replied, "Babson, I do not pose as a preacher, but let me tell you if there is a God, He will not let us advance further materially until we catch up spiritually. A great fundamental law of science is that all forces must be kept in balance. When any body or force goes off on a tangent there is a smash. And this applies to America as it has to every nation before."

Listen to Roger Babson, the great christian financial statistician, "In view of the steady work and easy profits of the past decade this new generation has felt sufficient in itself. Sabbath schools and churches have been neglected, family worship has been given up and Sunday has been made a common holiday. Hence unlike previous generations, a large percentage of the people now unemployed, or losing money in business, have no faith upon which to fall back. As a result great masses of people are discouraged and know not where to turn. The materidl wealth upon which they solely depended is gone, they have no spiritual wealth upon which to draw and are tired out physically."

He further says, "More religion—rather than more legislation—is the need of the hour. People should understand that before prosperity can return there must be a renewed interest in the spiritual life, both by individuals and nations. Nations should realize that the world has always possessed raw materials and labor, but has been prosperous only when the people have been actuated by religious faith to use these resources for advancement and service. This is the law of life and now is the time when it should be taught in churches, schools and colleges. Think it over."

Babson is a prophet indeed. Think of it. Right here in Marion county with 45,420 population, 25 churches reported less than 3,000 people attending morning worship on Jan. 18. If all churches in the county had reported, perhaps fewer than 4,000 would have been reported which would have been less than 10 per cent at church. If these were all members of our church then less than one third of the membership was in attendance. This indicates a very serious situation in this land of Gospel light and privilege.

Is it any monder that the Almighty God is permitting flood, drouth and pestilence to sweep the world? Is it any wonder that hard times are upon us when we have forgotten God and neglected our duty to Him? Our sins of omission and commission in America are crying to high heaven.

In Old Testament times when the people sinned, God sent famine, drouth, pestilence and devouring insects. But when they repented and cried to God He forgave their sins and restored their blessings both spiritual and material. His promise today is, "Return unto me and I will return unto you." God's word to us is "Repent or perish."

All officers were reelected when the board of sinking fund trustees met in its annual meeting in the Marion National bank yesterday afternoon.

H. B. Hane is president, J. K. Peters is vice president, and E. Paul Bachman is secretary. The board is composed of H. B. Hane, J. K. Peters, A. C. Edmondson and C. D. Schaffner.

The meeting marked the twenty-eighth anniversary of A. C. Edmondson's service on the board. He was an original member of the board when it was organized and has been reappointed by the various mayors since that time.

Edmondson is the oldest active banker in Marion, now approaching 77. He is president of the Fahey Banking Co on North Main street.

rather than dominate his comedy, and music composed by himself, to further emotional appeal.

The story of "City Lights," written and directed by Chaplin, is simple, its theme, the love of a pathetic vagabond for a beautiful blind flower girl, exquisitely played by Virginia Cherill, a screen newcomer. Harry Myers, star of "A Connecticut Yankee," makes a splendid screen comeback in the other principal role, that of the millionaire who in his less sober moments aids the tramp in his wistful romance.

May Use Old Ordinance To Enforce Blue Laws

By United Press.

CHRICHSVILLE, O., Jan. 31—An ordinance enacted 65 years ago will be used in the event that operators of local picture theaters are prosecuted for exhibiting films on Sunday, officials said today.

The ordinance enacted in 1866, provides that all business places excepting taverns, doctors' offices and barber shops shall remain closed on Sunday. Penalty for violation of the law is a fine of not more than $20.

Many a poor man has lost his life trying to sound the depths of a woman's love.

SLAYERS OF WILCOX CALM AT EXECUTION

the group of newspapermen as the electrodes were adjusted. His gaze was fixed and he looked as though he had lost 50 pounds since his trial. He received the current at 7:46 and was pronounced dead at 7:50.

Massa Is Calm

The air of Massa, who admitted firing the shot that killed Wilcox, was the same as that of the two men who had gone to the chair before him. He was seated in the chair, kissed the crucifix handed him by a priest, and sat calmly with his eyes lowered. Just before the death mask was placed over his head, he raised his eyes and stared blankly at the crowd.

The executions were speedily dispensed with and contained none of the unusual. The group that witnessed last night's executions was smaller than that which saw the trio put to death in 1926. Hope that they would not be put to death was held by Sites, McCartney and Massa until a late hour yesterday afternoon.

While electricians were inspecting the death chair late in the day to prevent a possible mishap during the triple execution, McCartney, Massa and Sites sat together for the last time at a little table in their cell where their last meal was served. They declined to specify what food they wanted and Mrs. Preston E. Thomas, wife of the warden, selected it. They were served fried chicken, mashed potatoes, creamed peas, pear salad, cake, ice cream, coffee and lemonade. Guards said they ate with relish and smoked cigarets afterwards.

See Familiar Faces

Witnesses and newspaper men arrived at the prison an hour before the execution. None passed the main gate, however, until passed by Warden Thomas. In the crowd were many faces familiar to the condemned trio—some from Mansfield where they all had lived and others from Crawford county, where they were convicted of murder.

The witnesses entered the main gate, one by one and continued in the formation until they reached the prison court. Then they marched to the death chamber.

Relatives claimed the bodies of the trio. All were taken to Columbus undertaking establishments where they were prepared for burial. McCartney will be buried in Mansfield, and Massa will be interred here. The body of Sites was taken to Ashland, today.

Friends and relatives left nothing undone in their efforts to save the trio. The Ohio supreme court heard their appeals but finally held out that the men had been given fair trials. As a last resort, they turned to the state clemency board and finally to Governor White.

In McCartney's behalf, it was claimed he was in an automobile outside the filling station when Wilcox was shot and that he was armed only with a broken gun. Attorneys for Massa and Sites claimed the juries that convicted them were prejudiced as a result of an assault case in which the trio had been implicated.

After alienists examined the men yesterday and pronounced them sane, Governor White refused to intervene and later turned down a separate appeal in behalf of McCartney.

3 Killers Toss Coin to Decide Execution Order

By The Associated Press.

CANON CITY, Colo., Jan. 31—Three bank robbers who shot it out with officers in a two-state flight last March have atoned in death for the murder of a Colorado deputy sheriff.

Gambling for the last few minutes of life, they were hanged at the state penitentiary here last night.

The flip of a coin decided John Walker, 45, an outlaw 20 years, who led his band in the robbery of a Manter, Kas., bank of $4,000 and the subsequent slaying of Carol A. Hickman, Eads, Colo., deputy, should be the last to die.

Claude Ray, 23, was the first. Andrew Halliday, 22, followed Ray to the death chamber.

They chose their order of execution by coin tossing with the sanction of Warden Francis E. Crawford, who said they were calm in the last moments.

Under a ruling of the prison administration, no details of the executions were announced. Newspapermen were barred.

All had accepted religious consolation. Each had written final letters to relatives.

The robbers were captured near Jetmore, Kas., about 24 hours after they robbed the Manter bank. They were driven back into Kansas by Colorado officers. The fugitives wounded three possemen in flight after slaying Hickman.

Dodd Road Ordered Vacated by County

County commissioners today declared vacant the Dodd road in Bowling Green township south of LaRue following a hearing of interested property holders.

Reasons given for the vacation are that the road is impassable throughout most of the year and that it is of little use at any time.

M. J. Loffler and others were the petitioners who asked for the vacation. The right-of-way will revert to adjacent property holders.

The lake front location of the fair already possesses permanent structures that should draw intelligent families from all over the United States, thanks to the generosity and civic pride of Chicago citizens who believe in big things.

At the entrance to the fair park stands a beautiful fountain. It cost a million dollars to build, and the giver endowed it with another million to keep it in good condition.

To the right is the magnificent museum that Marshall Field gave to Chicago, one of the finest buildings in the United States. It cost ten millions, and many millions are spent on its collections.

To the left is the fine aquarium built by John G. Shedd for the education of Chicago's young people and old.

Two hundred years ago he might have given his millions to purchase a passport to Heaven. The modern plan is to be remembered by fellow citizens, and take things as they come beyond the cemetery.

STEUBENVILLE BLAZE DOES HEAVY DAMAGE

Downtown District Threatened as Fire Destroys Building; Loss $100,000.

By Brush-Moore Leased Wire

STEUBENVILLE, Jan. 31—Fire destroyed the Turnbull-Saratt building here early this morning at an estimated loss of more than $100,000. A two story stone and brick structure on Market street, in the heart of the business section, the flames for three hours threatened the Hub, largest department store in this region and the Steubenville Bank & Trust company building.

Ten firemen were overcome by smoke but are recovering today. Fire Chief Ed Green was injured when he fell through a floor.

The building was unoccupied except for an indoor golf course on the second floor, where the fire is believed to have started. A small shop at one end of the building is owned by the Rogers Jewelry company.

The jewelry store will suffer the heaviest damage to stock. Adjoining stores suffered heavily from smoke and water damage.

ENGLISH TRIAL SET FOR FEB. 10 IN LIMA

Marion Man Faces Charge of Manslaughter in Allen County Court.

P. C. English, Marion insurance man, will stand trial at Lima on Feb. 10 when he will defend himself on a charge of manslaughter, it was announced today from Lima.

English was indicted by the Allen county grand jury after the death last summer of Clarence H. Folsom, 84-year-old retired Lima real estate operator, who was struck by a machine while attempting to cross a street.

Witnesses noted the license number of the car and police later arrested English, who was said to be the driver.

The case will be heard by Judge Emmett E. Everett. English will be defended by Attorney Francis Durbin. At present he is at liberty under $3,000 bond which was furnished following his indictment.

BORAH ATTACKED

Senator Norris Also Target of James T. Begg Speech.

By United Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 31—An attack on Senator Borah and Senator Norris, and condemnation of the direct primary was voiced by former Congressman James T. Begg, of Cleveland in an address to the Republican glee club at a McKinley day banquet here Friday night.

He accused Borah and Norris of creating turmoil in the Republican party and preventing party conditions from getting back to normal. He described the direct primary as "one of the worst things that ever happened in this country."

Begg also deplored the "slow-working congress" and the Wickersham report. He said the Wickersham commission spent a half million dollars and 18 months in an attempt to fool the public.

LAVAL ACCEPTED AS PREMIER OF FRANCE

47-Year-Old Son of Country Butcher One of Youngest To Hold Post.

By The Associated Press.

PARIS, Jan. 31—Pierre Laval, son of a country butcher, and one of the youngest men ever to reach the head of the French government, was established in office today by two votes of confidence, which surpassed the hope of even his fondest friends.

His supporters saw in the two majorities, 54, on the first vote and 51 on a ballot rejecting an opposition amendment to the original question of confidence, indicating that this government, the seventh in the life of the present parliament, would hold on until a new president is elected in June to succeed M. Doumergue.

In winning his chamber victory after reading of the ministerial declaration, Premier Laval, who is 47, proved almost as great a spellbinder as his mentor, Aristide Briand, a leading candidate in the race for the presidency to succeed M. Doumergue.

Modest, persuasive and sincere, his appeal to rise above politics and work for the good of France drew cheers even from many opponents.

"I'll give you one hour to make up your mind. You'll either go with me to Baltimore or you'll go alone to Woodland cemetery and you'll stay there."

When the hour was up, Duty said he forced his wife into their car and drove her to the cemetery and killed her there.

While an indictment was being returned against him, Duty said he fled and shipped as a sailor for Australia and China. In Australia, he worked as a marine supply man. Then he said he became lonesome and filled with regret, and decided he did not want to live any more. Influenced by these emotions, he returned to Ohio.

Duty was applying for work as a lineman in an office here when deputies found him. He offered no resistance.

Filling Station Robber Shot by Police Ambush

By The Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 31—Two young men who robbed a filling station for the second time within a week ran into a police ambush last night and one of them was shot to death. His alleged accomplice was captured.

The dead man, John Clegg, alias Sullivan, 27, was killed by Patrolman Harry Mobley, who with Patrolman Albert Burns had guarded the station since the attendant was robbed of $31 last Wednesday. Clegg's alleged companion, who gave his name as William Peterson, was caught by Burns in an attempt to escape. The men had just robbed the station of $2.70, the officers said.

After a trial of twelve years, Finland has appointed a commission to investigate the social conditions created by prohibition and suggest amendments with a view to the furthering of temperance. Seemingly, the Finns are a lot like a considerable element of Americans; they don't want "to be told."

Dictator Stalin urges the Communist party and the trade unions of soviet Russia to help the government reorganize its railways on which the only times when trains aren't late are when they are abandoned. It takes more than mechanical and physical power to operate railroads.

Tiny Eros was but 16,000,000 miles away from us Friday, closer than any other planetary body ever comes to us save the moon, if Luna may be called a planetary body, and closer than it will be again until 1975. Sixteen million miles, terrestially considered, is some distance, but astronomically considered it's really chummy.

A witness before the house interstate commerce committee this week predicted that within three years airships would be carrying passengers from Washington to Paris in two and a half days at a cost of $750. Maybe so! But we have no hesitation about confessing that the old way is good enough for us. What's the use of all this hurry, anyway, especially at the cost of comfort?

The Illinois Association of County Highway Superintendents is urging legislation which will make it the duty of the state to build highways into and through municipalities of all sizes to meet traffic needs. Why not? Why should not the state meet highway costs within municipal limits just as it does outside them?

Commenting on the radical demand for an extra session, Senator David A. Reed, of Pennsylvania, a day or two ago remarked that "congress can not make prosperity, but it often can spoil it." Isn't it the truth?

As State Prohibition Director Beetham sees it, the recent statement by Governor White, to the effect that higher salaries will attract a better class of state dry enforcement agents, calls for an apology to the employes of the state prohibition department. Possibly the employes would be willing to compromise on higher salaries.

Ohio's First Relief Legislation.

Ohio's first unemployment and drought aid legislation lacks only the signature of Governor White to become effective. With that, the house having passed senate bill, No. 76, this week, there will be authorization for the expenditure of $6,000,000 on federal roads between the time the act becomes a law and September 1, half of which must be expended by the state and half by the federal government, the amount advanced by the latter to be deducted from the federal aid money which regularly would come to Ohio between 1933 and 1938.

There seemingly was much confusion in the minds of house members regarding the meaning of the bill, neither the majority or the minority floor leader nor the chairman of the highway committee, which recommended the bill, being able to explain it. When, however, the member from Jackson county explained that, under the bill, Ohio was getting instead of expending money, adding that the house, which seldom hesitated about voting money out of the treasury, should not worry too much about accepting money when opportunity offered, the bill went through with a rush, 110 votes being cast for and none against it. The novelty of a thing like that appealed to the membership, regardless of what its understanding of the measure otherwise might be.

With good weather conditions—probably it would be better to say, barring more than the normal run of unfavorable weather—these millions will give decided relief to unemployment conditions. But much will hinge on weather conditions, for it will not be sufficient to obligate the funds or have the work under contract. They must be expended and in the hands of the contractors with the completion of the work by September 1 to comply with the conditions of the bill as passed by the two houses of the assembly.

Senator Nye Feels Outraged.

Senator Gerald P. Nye has made manifest to the senate his feeling that he has been made the victim of an outrage such as never before has been perpetrated upon a member of the senate by a fellow-senator. The North Dakota senator refers to the action of Senator George H. Moses, of New Hampshire, in placing in the congressional record an itimized statement showing that the Nye campaign expense investigating committee has expended $97,000. The investigating senator from Cooperstown indicated his belief that the New Hampshire senator had acted in an attempt to endanger his, Nye's, chances for reelection next year. To this Senator Moses responded that when the audit and control committee had approved an additional $50,000 for the Nye committee it stipulated a date for the termination of the committee's investigations and an itemized account of previous expenditures be made.

"The accountant not having been forthcoming," Senator Moses added, "I entered it in the record without any regard for the future ambitions of the senator from North Dakota."

Senator Nye told the senate that the could "see the pages of the record in the hands of every political foe of mine in North Dakota when I seek reelection next year," with "tongue wagging about how lavishly Nye lives when out on government expense."

Protesting that never before had the chairman of a committee been thus treated, the North Dakotan called attention to items of $1,500, $1,800 and $2,000 indirectly charged to him and also an item of $4,000 drawn by his brother, Donald O. Nye, in charge of the committee's agents—all of which, he told the senate, would be used as political capital against him.

The account, as presented in the record, also makes plain that Mr. Nye and his fellow-committeemen weren't any pikers when it came to the matter of employing assistants and in remunerating them. More than a dozen investigators, most of whom were paid $500 a month and expenses, were employed at various times, as well as a secretary at $500 a month, one clerk at $200, two assistant clerks at $125 and others at varying salaries.

It is probably true, as the North Dakotan states, that his political foes back home will make political capital out of his expense account. Such things will happen. The senator himself may be charged with having been guilty of manufacturing some degree of political capital in the handling of his investigations. But the county should forgive him that, as well as the public money he has expended, for his account demonstrates how easily expenditures run up in matters political, whether in seeking office or in investigating the methods by which office is sought. As a patriot, he should not begrudge the light he has given the country in this direction, even though it may work to his political disadvantage. In the light of his expenditure of something like $100,000 and his future expenditure of $50,000 more in the investigation of the campaign costs of various successful senatorial candidates in last fall's election, there is ground for wonder that the expenses incurred in their behalf were no larger than they were. Had the campaigns of the various candidates investigated by him been as generously financed as was his committee they would have cost twice what they did.

Incidentally, to add humor to the situation, some senator might demand a committee to investigate its campaign expense committee.

The West Virginia house judiciary committee has recommended the payment of $1,000 to Frank Howell, who served fourteen months in the state penitentiary, for having been wrongfully convicted and confined, and he says he will be mighty glad to get it. Talking about ways in which to make $1,000, this comes pretty close to our idea of the very worst.

The Interstate Commerce commission has decided not to stand in the way of such railroads as may desire to cut their passenger rates from 3.6 cents a mile to two cents to meet motor vehicle competition, the reductions not to apply on Pullmans. In a word, the way is now open for the adoption of first, second and third-class services in this country the same as has so long obtained in Europe, and the St. Louis-San Francisco line will put the three-fare system into effect tomorrow.

The French, who for three years have been busily engaged in adding to their store of gold, now fear that the flood of that metal into the banks of Paris is raising the prices of necessities, and discouraging buying. Over here we have discovered to our sorrow that possession of exceeding wealth doesn't necessarily imply good business conditions.

The governor of Delaware has signed the old-age pension bill passed by that state's legislature last Tuesday, which will pay all indigent persons over sixty-five from five to twenty-five dollars monthly. There's no use misinterpreting the handwriting upon the wall. We youngsters may just as well face the inevitable and prepare to look after the needy aged.

The French have developed a new all-metal battle plane which has a speed of 155 miles an hour. Thus the work of disarmament goes on!

A distillery valued at half a million dollars, "the largest seized in New York state since the advent of prohibition," was discovered by federal dry agents, a few nights ago, in Kingston. We have about given up hope of ever hearing of the seizure of a plain, ordinary, every-day sort of a distillery. The only ones taken these days, if we are to credit reports, are "the largest yet seized."

France doesn't propose to be eclipsed by any land in the race for liner speed and bigness. The French line this week laid the keel of a 1,000-foot vessel which is to be as speedy as any afloat and have a tonnage of 70,000, in the latter respect surpassing the big Cunarder being constructed in Britain. And the odd phase of all this rivalry is that it goes on despite the fact that the great majority of travelers prefer somewhat smaller and less speedy boats, partly because of the fare saving and partly because they ride more smoothly than the racers when speeded up to their capabilities.

GO AFTER THE BIG FELLOW.

Editorial Opinion.

ADVERTISING HEALTH.

The medical profession has made tremendous progress in the diagnosis and cure of disease. Comparatively little progress has been made in the fundamentally more important field of disease prevention, simply because it is the habit of people to wait for illness to overtake them, or to come to the emergency stage, before they consult a physician. They have not been educated to the fact that periodic examinations, at least once or twice a year, would prolong their lives, save them a great deal of grief and pain, illness and expense.

Here, it seems, is not only a privilege, but a duty of medicine—to bring home to the public the value of preventive examinations and treatment. Newspapers have persistently urged this fact upon their readers, but so long as the medical associations themselves are virtually silent on so important a matter the full value of the argument is lost. The reporting of statements and addresses meant primarily for the ears of the profession can do little to sway the public mind. The daily publication in newspapers of health articles, while it is valuable, would be vastly more valuable if actively backed and sponsored by the entire medical profession.

There has been some recent liberalization in medicine's attitude toward advertising. It profitably could be carried farther. No one wants individual physicians to adopt catchy slogans or methods of high-pressure salesmanship.

It is the duty of reputable physicians themselves, not individually, perhaps, but as a profession, to combat publicly the old dread of physical examination and clinical advice, the fears and misapprehensions deliberately implanted by propagandist quacks, and the deplorable tendency of people to wait until an illness becomes critical before submitting to examination and treatment — Cincinnati Enquirer.

BY WORKING TOGETHER.

Nearly one month of a legislative session which ordinarily lasts no more than four has passed, and no agreement is reached yet as to how to proceed to the solution of the session's biggest issue. The Republican majority insists the Democratic governor shall assume some measure of responsibility in the framing of a tax measure, friends of the governor are striving to keep him free from such responsibility.

We do not understand this reluctance on the part of the governor's supporters in the assembly. The task of adopting a new tax code, put on the state by the constitutional amendment, is difficult enough and assuredly important enough to command the efforts of both branches of government.

Cooperation now between the executive and the legislative might avert the necessity of a wrangle and a veto later.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Hard Up for Brains.

We don't recall that under the old regime Russia had to import several thousand engineers, technical experts and skilled workmen from the "capitalistic" countries to show her how to do things.—Boston Transcript.

A Sheridan Indian Day Story.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

Shortly before the civil war, when General Phil Sheridan, then a subordinate officer in the army, was stationed in the Far Northwest—the Yakima country—he had an experience with the superstition of the Blackfeet Indians which he deemed worthy of telling in his memoirs.

He wanted to construct a block house for defense purposes, and the site he selected, because of the advantage of the topography, was used by the Indians as a cemetery. They had a peculiar manner of disposing of their dead. Instead of burying it, the body was placed on a canoe, with such articles as they believed the deceased would require in the "Happy Hunting Grounds," and the canoe was placed high up in the forks of trees.

He knew that the Indians would object to the interference with their cemetery, and they did. He was firm, though diplomatic, and they held a long conference on the ocean beach. It was finally agreed that the cemetery might be used as desired, on condition that Sheridan remove the canoes and set them adrift the following morning, when the outgoing tide would carry them out to sea, and the offcoast wind, the next night, would waft them still farther.

Sheridan said he had noticed when inspecting the place that the canoes were alive with wood rats, and he and his men anticipated some fun with the rodents when the canoes were given to the water, but when the canoes were taken down, not a single wood rat was found in them.

The Indians insisted that the rats understood the Chinook language and had overheard the conversation about the removal of the canoes, but it was Sheridan's conclusion that they had been molested by his visits of inspection of the cemetery, and being extremely wary, had taken their departure immediately.

"Air Without Life."

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

It is strange how many persons have no interest in the sort of air they breathe. They appear perfectly indifferent to an atmosphere that you could "cut with a knife." They will sit for hours in a room blue with tobacco smoke, or in air filled with dust.

There are persons who sleep all night long with every window closed. There are lots of them. They seem not to know or care that the air is perfectly vile.

All I can say is they are laying up trouble and misery for themselves and their families. Unless you are built like a savage, you can not have good health without a lot of fresh air in the house day and night. You should make it a point to have some ventilation, whether it is by way of windows or doors or by some artificial means.

Of course, if you are so fortunate as to have a house installed with modern ventilation, you are to be congratulated. But few have adequate ventilating systems, so that the only means of having fresh air is by way of the window or door.

The man who is accustomed to a well-ventilated home will not tolerate his office or place of business to be choked all day long with stale air, dust or smoke. He will insist on having the windows open. To breathe over and over the irritating air for hours is to damage the delicate membranes of nose, throat and lungs. The eyes will suffer.

Many of the too prevalent colds of winter may be traced to vitiated air—air without life. Living in a room or house without proper ventilation is dangerous.

I beg of you not to permit yourself and your family to be housed in stuffy rooms. The ideal way to live is to have your home so well heated that you can have every room ventilated by having at least one slightly open window.

There is nothing in the world so good as fresh air for man, woman and child. Next to eating, it is the most important factor in insuring good health.

Dress yourself warmly enough so that you can enjoy the fresh air. Build up resistance to disease by getting out-of-doors and breathing the right kind of air indoors, every day, every night. For the sake of your health do this, and get proper exercise while you are doing it.

It isn't necessary to sit in a draught, and you shouldn't. There are shields and other devices to direct the currents of air to the ceiling. Give thought to the problem and you can work out some plan of your own to get fresh air without chill.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

M. S. W. Q—I have been troubled with an itchiness of the thighs, leaving the legs covered with black and blue marks as if they had been bruised. What would cause this trouble?

A—These symptoms would seem to suggest purpura. See your doctor for a definite diagnosis and proper treatment.

J. F. M. Q—How can I reduce?

A—Weight reduction is merely a matter of self-control as regards the diet. Exercise is, of course, essential. A good brisk walk for half an hour every day is helpful. For other information send a self-addressed, stamped envelope, and repeat your question.—Copyright, 1931, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Malthus, Population Prophet.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

Malthus and his theories have provoked an almost incalculable amount of discussion and controversy. He has been the center of attack for many views he did not uphold; and the general result of his theory of population and food increase has been the stimulation of very wide research in the fields he opened up for investigation.

It is only within comparatively recent years that the value of his work has been fully recognized, even although it has not always been supported by the subsequent results of research in that field.

Malthus was by no means the first person to study and discuss the future of mankind, on the basis of population growth and food increase. These ideas were considered by both Plato and Aristotle; and in modern times, Benjamin Franklin and David Hume anticipated Malthus in certain of his views. Even down to the time of the English statesman, Pitt, increase in population was regarded as an unqualified advantage for a state.

Malthus sharply indicated the difficulties and pointed out certain of the remedies, for unrestricted growth. Extended study of these problems is now an accepted phase of contemporary social research.

Thomas Robert Malthus was born near Dorking, England, February 17, 1766. After receiving adequate preparation he entered Cambridge, whence he was graduated in 1788, having served as a fellow of Jesus college. While still retaining his fellowship, he took orders and was appointed to a parish in his native county.

Ten years after his graduation, there appeared anonymously the first edition of his great work: "An Essay on the Principles of Population as It Affects the Future Improvement of Society." At this time, Malthus was only thirty-two years old. It is commonly accepted as true that this epochal work was suggested by an article in William Godwin's Enquirer.

Although Godwin was a Socialist, of a sort, and disciple of Rousseau, the views of the perfectibility of human society were not entertained by Malthus, who held a scientific point of view. Malthus, however, was violently attacked and abused, for principles which were contrary to his own.

After making extended studies in Switzerland, France and Norway, and completely revising his first work, he was elected professor of modern history and political economy in the East India Company's college at Haileybury, a position he held until his death.

The fundamental formula of Malthus is that population increases in a geometrical ratio, food is an arithmetical ratio. This formula has been rejected by present-day economists. But the subject of population growth, stimulated by Malthus, has enabled predictions now to be made with remarkable accuracy.

For example, Francis Bonynge in 1852 predicted the population of the United States, fifty years ahead, decade by decade, within an error of five per cent. Today Edward M. Last, of Harvard, does not hesitate to predict that the population of the world will be doubled by the year 2100, and that by 2500 the population will be about 35,000,000,000.—Copyright, 1931, International Feature Service, Inc.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. M'INTYRE.

New York, Jan. 31—Purely personal pique. Sea food to my notion is zero in eating. The late Kin Hubbard told me the funniest small-town story I ever heard. I have worn the same model gray hat for fifteen years. For no particular reason I always wanted to visit Norfolk, Virginia.

I can watch sea gulls for hours. No one makes a curtain speech like Otis Skinner. Secretly I'd like to talk like Back Bay Bostonians. I have been able to sell but one poem. There are three people whose profiles spoil my evening. The most fidgety fellow I know is Will Rogers.

I used to swipe five-cent novels from Cherwood Moore's book store in Gallipolis. And play second mandolin in a dance orchestra. The front of the Paris opera makes me think of Lon Chaney. I confuse Norman Rockwell and Rockwell Kent. And Alice Brady and Florence Nash.

My wife hushes me up when I talk too much at parties with a funny sort of glance. It angers me, but I shut up. Somehow I never give people the impression I was once a doctor of a fellow. My father-in-law never spoke to me until several months after I was married.

A derby is for some reason to me comic. Earl Carroll eats less than any one I know. The finest stage setting this season was by Chamberlain Dodge in an unimportant play. I love thinly sliced cheese for breakfast. People have mistaken me for Tully Marshall.

I waltzed one night with Irene Castle my entire conversation consisting of: "A marvelous orchestra." The most graphic underworld phrase is "giving him the heat," for assassination. Booth Tarkington sent me the only letter I ever kept—expressing sympathy for the death of a dog.

The ickiest-looking men I ever saw are Charles W. Fairbanks and Charles Evans Hughes. I never enjoyed a tune more than "When You're Away," from "The Only Girl." For years my favorite vaudeville team was Melville and Higgins. I dined a gold-toothed burlesque actress at Tony Faust's in St. Louis during the "Fair."

I solicited advertising for a hotel throwaway to be called "The Key to New York" and in three weeks did not land a single prospect. I organized the Dayton, Ohio, Press club which I believe is still running. At seventeen I bought an electric belt for four dollars from the Vitality institute, Detroit, Michigan. I was a sucker for every new patent medicine. And took the No-To-Bac cure four times. The movie I enjoyed most is the recent "Sous Les Toits de Paris."

Irvin Cobb delivers the best of the current radio talks. Katherine Brush strikes me the most promising of younger novelists. Every once in awhile I awaken convinced my heart is on the wrong side. The most nagging habit I know is cigaret smoking.

I have been introduced to several dukes, one prince and a king and all had a gracious manner I envied. My most miserable evening was alone in the Savoy in London. In a dense fog a court singer sang an eerie litany of despair under my window. I am chummy with taxi drivers and learn more from them about strange cities than from guide books. I invariably call Hamish McLauren's wife Amish. Her name is Aimee. I went to housekeeping largely to forage in a pantry icebox and never go near it.

I boost scores of New York eating places but never accept a free meal. If one tries to "frank" a check I never visit it again. I buy theatrical tickets—save first nights not on sale—from Leo Newman's agency. I once knocked the wrong fellow down for insulting a lady. And he immediately forgave me, bless him. When I hear shrieking winds at night I like to turn out the lights, hop into bed and think up mystery story plots. I rather like Jimmy Walker, but it seems to me he's in a bad spot.

I have not had one day's vacation from the typewriter in fifteen years. The moment a ship is clear of the dock I'm sorry I sailed. When I hear any one crack nuts with their teeth I break out in a sweat. I am minus a nail on my left little toe. And likely other things, too. As you may have noticed!—Copyright, 1931, McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

World's Highest Railway.

BY TEMPLE MANNING.

Some of the loftiest peaks of the Andes are crossed by the Central railway, of Peru. This extraordinary railroad is said to be the highest in the world. Certainly the South American line is one of the most picturesque in existence.

Most of Peru has remained almost unchanged since the days when the Spanish conquistadores swept through it in search of the country's fabulous stores of gold.

Even before the towers of Lima disappear the traveler can look on either side of him to see rude bamboo huts with thatch roofs nestling among the banana trees.

A ride of a little more than an hour takes you to the foothills of Chosica. An hour and a half more brings you to an altitude of 5,845 feet and into Lima's famous fruit yard, San Bartolome.

Most of the people here are descendants of the ancient Incas. They are solemn folk, these Indians, and wear so many clothes it is difficult to distinguish the fat from the thin.

The women wear many-colored shawls, and carry on their backs a large bundle which not infrequently includes a baby. After San Bartolome comes Surco, a town abounding in flowers.

Gradually the flowers give way to cactus, and later, even this vegetation disappears as the train ascends higher and higher. The entire road is dotted with tunnels. There are sixty-five of these, each one cut out of solid rock.

Now one sees bare ravines, with here and there a village of adobe hovels. The town of Casalpaca contains a mountain mine, the first of many to be seen on the trip. Above Casalpaca the air takes on a biting sting, which increases in intensity until Ticlie, the railway's highest point is reached. This station, surrounded by snow-capped mountains, stands at an elevation of 15,665 feet.

The trip from Lima to Casalpaca takes one through all sorts of climates. You encounter every weather condition—heat, fog, cold, rain, snow, sleet—that you would encounter in a trip from Georgia to Montreal. It certainly is not the pleasantest journey in the world to make, but it most assuredly is as interesting as any I know.

Twenty Years Ago.

It was Tuesday, January 31.

Plans were afoot for the merger of the Bell and independent telephone systems in twenty-four Ohio cities.

The J. P. Ludwig drygoods stock was sold by Trustee in Bankruptcy B. F. Waples to Moorehouse & Martens, of Columbus, for $4,850.

Felix Kiger was elected president of the Marion County Agricultural society.

Hoke W. Donithen returned from a business trip to Charleston, South Carolina.

The body of Mrs. J. W. Overly, who died at Roundhead, seventeen years before, when disinterred to be moved to another cemetery, was found to be petrified.

The Star reported the birth of a daughter, the night before, to Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Vanderburg.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Chester Spain, of Herman street.

The Stars Say—

For Sunday, Feb. 1

SUNDAY'S horoscope is a fairly inauspicious one, excepting for some minor activities relating to spiritual or secret matters. Affairs may lag and meet with frustration, the physical condition may be depleted or depressed, and mental attitudes, and affairs may not be productive. Be careful with writings.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year beset with difficulty and frustration. There may be tenacious obstacles, depressed mental and physical conditions, although diplomacy or strategy may assist over bad places. But be careful with all manner of writings, and shun litigation. A child born on this day should be sober, studious and reticent, probably prone to gain its ends by secret or subtle influence or wisdom.

For Monday, Feb. 2

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for a very important and eventful year, with sudden change of far-reaching influence on the affairs and the life. This may be in connection with new projects or adventures, and should bring gratifying results, but are under the peril of rash or reckless impulses, which should be rigorously repressed. There also may be some minor personal friction.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a very important year, with sudden change, new undertakings and environment, all of which should bring excellent success if a tendency to rash and impulsive grasp of the situation be controlled. Haste and precipitancy would be hazardous to excellent prospects. A child born on this day should be brilliant, ingenious and resourceful, and should attain good position, all of which may be negatived by a proclivity to rash, impulsive and quarrelsome conduct, a trait which should be disciplined in infancy.

THEATER NEWS AND REVIEWS

PALACE TO BRING BACK VAUDEVILLE FOR PATRONS HERE

Orchestra Goes Back into Pit as Stage Arts Return Here.

BY HALLIE HOUCK

THEATER fare in Marion is looking up. The Palace is bringing vaudeville to Marion for a two-day show beginning Sunday and will continue this policy if the box-office receipts permit. The management is arranging to book only successful acts that have gained a reputation on the road.

The addition of vaudeville is a step toward making one Marion theater program the equal of programs in the larger cities. The last step will be the return of the orchestra to the pit.

Headlining the bill Sunday and Monday will be "The Ten Debutantes," featuring the only double piano girl band on the road Ray Walzer has been booked as master of ceremonies.

Casson and Marie, a team direct from a tour of Radio-Keith-Orpheum houses, a skit, "The Nut" with Walzer and Ruban, the Whitton Sisters and the "We Three Trio," complete the bill.

On the screen, Eddie Quillan stars in "Night Work," a comedy of youth and infants. Sally Starr, a sweet little girl who's beginning to get the breaks in parts, has the leading feminine role.

BARTHELMESS TO PLAY OHIO

Richard Barthelmess' latest starring picture, "The Lash," with Mary Astor and Marian Nixon in support, opens at the Ohio Sunday for a three day stay.

Barthelmess is almost the only one of the old guard of silent films of years ago, who has retained his strong foothold with his public with the advent of talking pictures.

James Rennie, Fred Kohler, Barbara Bedford and Robert Edeson are prominent names in the cast

The statistic fiend will find great pleasure in delving into the figures that went into the making of "The Lash." Fifteen hundred head of cattle, one bear, 48 mules, one mountain lion, six dogs, two parrots, six cats, 300 horses, 150 sheep, 28 goats and a hawk are the nonhuman things used in the feature. In addition 2,400 extras were used, an entire village was wrecked and burned to the ground and 18 tons of costumes—Spanish and early California—were worn by the cast and extras.

Barthelmess spent many hours before a mirror having his hair fussed over while he was making this picture, and it had nothing to do with vanity. The hiraute fashions of gentlemen of the early California period differed radically from that of today.

"THE GREAT MEADOW" COMING TO MARION

"The Great Meadow," showing at the Marion Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, brings back to us Eleanor Boardman. The picture was adapted from Elizabeth Madox Roberts' well-known novel, with Miss Boardman, in private life Mrs. King Vido, John Mack Brown, last seen in "Billy the Kid," Gavin Gordon, the "other man" of Garbo's "Romance," and other prominent actors and actresses in the screen world.

The picture has been reviewed in current publications as a gripping story of pioneer families in the vivid days of Daniel Boone.

The largest number of pre-revolutionary flint-lock rifles seen in one place since the War of Independence was gathered at the studios for use in Charles Brabin's picture. For week wires were sent to all parts of the United States where the cumbersome old style rifles were known to be held either by museums or individuals. Two hundred authentic ones were finally obtained.

The most primitive of American "treks" is one of the central features of "The Great Meadow." No covered wagons, no cook stoves, no alarm clocks no cartridge rifles were carried by the Virginians who went to Kentucky across the mountains in 1775, the period in which the story takes place.

BUCK JONES AND SILVER HITS OF PICTURE AT OHIO

Low Interest Doesn't Interfere with Acting of Man and Horse.

THERE'S still a thrill in a clean cut western picture, and Buck Jones' picture, "Shadow Ranch," closing at the Ohio tonight, is a cracking good western. And his horse "Silver" has a lot more sense than the villians Buck chases to make the story come out right.

To bring everything out right, and to give the story action, there's some two-gun shooting, lassoing, fast and furious riding, a slim love story that isn't too bothersome to spoil the story, and some comedy moments which belong exclusively to Kate Price and Buck Jones.

Marguerite De La Motte hasn't much to do as the heroine. The picture belong to Jones and "Silver." Jones is a roving cowboy who falls in love with a girl who owns the controlling water supply of the section. Of course there's a villain, Al Smith, who's trying to swindle her out of the valuable property. He kills Jones' best friend, and while getting his revenge, Jones wins the girl. The love story is a minor note, compared to the action. Comedy and newsreel round out the bill.

"HEADIN' NORTH" AT MARION

A typical western melodrama, "Headin' North," in which Bob Steele is featured, opened yesterday at the Marion Theater and will be presented for the final times today.

Steele plays the part of an escaped convict who attempts to establish his innocence of the felony for which he was imprisoned. How he finds the guilty man makes up the plot of the picture, which was produced by Tiffany.

A Charley Chase comedy, "High C's," is another of Chase's many laugh-provokers. The eighth episode of "Phantom of the West," a Grantland Rice Sportlight, a Flip-the-Frog cartoon and Pathe News complete the bill.

The superintendent invited Haswell to remain with him and Constable Roscoe. After Evelyn, Donald Wade and Lionel Duckworth withdrew, he produced his notebook and asked Marjorie, the first witness, to sit down. About a year older than her sister, her coloring and blue eyes were similar, but to Jimmie she did not appear as attractive.

"I knew your aunt, although I have only spoken to her a few times. How old was she?" asked Richmond.

"Sixty-nine," said the girl, in a low clear voice.

"Apart from those letters, had there been any trouble that you know of?"

"I don't think so, but—in what way do you mean?"

"Well, was there ever a real quarrel? You cannot think of any one who might have wanted to injure her?"

The girl considered the question and paled a little, but her "No" was again quite firm.

"I see. Please tell me exactly who lives in the house."

"Only my sister and myself—with my aunt. And of course the servants."

"Had your aunt any other relations?"

"My brother, Vincent. He lives in London. We haven't seen him for four months."

"Now, Miss Blake, tell me of the servants. Any men?"

"Not in the house. There is Ben Acres, the gardener, and the chauffeur, Edward Green. But he is leaving. He—" she hesitated and her color returned—"he wanted to marry."

"Do you mean," asked Jimmie, smiling, "that your aunt dismissed Green because she disapproved of that marriage in particular or of marriages in general?"

"Of marriages in general," said the girl more warmly. "Aunt Annabelle was very good in many ways, but in that she was most unreasonable." A slight flush indicated that in this she disagreed with her aunt.

"Any besides these two men?"

"George Dent and Arthur—I don't know his name—help. Ben. They live in the village," Marjorie supplemented. "There are three maids. Mrs. Frater, the cook—she's ill now—Janet Raynes and Hetty Smith, the housemaid."

"Were there others here last night?"

"Yes. Mr. Duckworth—you just saw him—dropped in and Dr. Netherton came to see the cook."

"Didn't someone mention Major Gresham?"

"I met him in the garden."

"Think carefully, Miss Blake," Inspector Richmond put the question slowly and deliberately. "Was there no one else in the house or gardens at about the time the tragedy occurred?"

She hesitated and her fair skin flushed and paled under his scrutiny.

"Tell me what happened."

"There was no one else," she said. "After dinner," she began after a slight pause in which the memory appeared painful, "my aunt went out to her usual seat in that garden. I went with her, but soon returned to the house. Afterwards, Mr. Duckworth came. We brought him to this room and left him with my sister. Then I met Dr. Netherton."

"Did Mr. Duckworth see your aunt?" interrupted Richmond.

"No, he came straight to this room. I think Aunt Annabelle knew he was coming."

"So far as you judge, did she approve of his engagement to your sister?"

There was a touch of bitterness in Marjorie's reply that her aunt disapproved of all engagements, although she allowed that one to go on, while not pleased about it.

Questioned about Dr. Netherton's visit, Marjorie said that after he had attended Mrs. Frater she took him to her aunt in the garden. It was about 9 o'clock, she said, just beginning to get dusk.

"Dr. Netherton and I were with her only a few minutes. He told her Mrs. Frater was better but should remain in bed for another day. She has a cold and Aunt Annabelle was pleased to have her go to bed."

"You say the doctor stayed for only a few minutes, talked of the cook's illness and then went? Nothing else," Marjorie replied after a pause in which her cheeks flushed.

"Did he go off alone?"

"I went with him—through the gardens."

"How long were you away?"

Marjorie's eyes showed her distress. "I don't know," she said in a very low tone. "We were talking for some time—perhaps 15 minutes."

"When you went through the garden did you take him to his car?"

"No, Bill had walked over." Both men noticed her use of the Christian name.

"And you stood there talking for about 15 minutes, you said. Did you meet anyone in the gardens?"

"No, not then," Marjorie answered. After the doctor left she said she had remained in the lane for about 10 minutes, seeing or speaking to no one.

"Then," she continued, "I walked down the lane, on to the links, in through the bottom gate, and up to the Dutch garden, meaning to ask Aunt Annabelle if she would come in. Then I saw her—on the ground. I thought she had fainted. I ran to her—and I found—she was dead. That figure was lying beside her. Her head was bleeding . . . it was horrible."

To Be Continued.

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

Despite Mr. Spencer's Evident Wish to Confer Only With Dicky and Harry Underwood Lillian and Madge Count Themselves In.

"YOU see," Dicky began with the evident intention of relating the old incident of Junior's childhood, the memory of which annoyed me so much, but even as I opened my lips to protest, I caught sight of my father's harassed face, and closed them tightly. He was wildly impatient to get on with the conference he wished with Dicky and Harry about the safeguarding of the farmhouse, but he was so fastidiously careful of the amenities that he would not interrupt his son-in-law's story. I knew that protests would only delay the tale, not prevent it, unless I succeeded in making by husband angry. So I made no verbal protest, only put up my hand in a feigned threatening gesture against Dicky, and with a broad grin he proceeded with the tale.

"Lil's heard this saga many times," he began, "but you two men haven't, and it sure sheds a sidelight upon the suppressed ferocity of my mild-looking frau here. You wouldn't think she'd be guilty of assault and battery right in the public streets, would you? Well, just listen to this."

He stopped, took a deep breath as if to do full justice to his theme and went on:

"It was back in Marvin, you know—where we lived when Junior was a baby," he said. "We'd been taking a walk, and I went in one of the shops to make some purchase or other. Madge wouldn't take Junior inside the shop because of measles or mumps or housemaid's knee, or something else prevalent in the town, so I went in alone. I didn't come back as soon as my son and heir thought proper and when he had fussed unavailingly about the delay, he proceeded to cast himself down on the sidewalk and give a convincing imitation of another child he had seen try the same tactics with apparent success a few days before.

Madge's Discipline

"I came out of the shop just in time to see the performance, but you can bet I didn't let on I belonged to the family. Madge tried a mild reasoning command, once, a peremptory command twice, and she rolled up her sleeves and went into action. She picked the youngster from the ground, turned him upside down and—but I'll draw a thick black veil. Suffice it to say that the ensuing performance was one which should have been staged only in a home with curtains drawn. But it worked. Junior was too astonished to scream, and when his mother finished he was sobbing and docile. She walked him off toward home at a tremendous pace apparently forgetting all about me."

"You can bet you didn't do any double trot to recall yourself to her remembrance," Lillian said caustically. "You sneaked home by another street as if you'd never heard of a small boy in a tantrum."

"That was because I did not wish to interfere with Madge's discipline," Dicky said loftily. "I never have done that, have I old dear?"

I shook my head with a smile divided as I generally am between exasperation and tenderness.

"But" he finished grandiloquently, "Junior never has thrown himself down upon a pavement since."

Lillian's Determination

"I suppose that supports the old theory 'Beat 'em up before they're three and you won't have to attend their hanging before they're thirty.'" Mr. Underwood contributed so soberly that I "but" and protested indignantly "Harry! I never 'beat' my child. I never—" then I saw the twinkle in his eye and his broad grin and reddened.

"Had you that time," he said, and Lillian commented sapiently:

"Madge and I both believe in a modification of that theory at that. I've heard her expound it often."

"But thank you for the story, Dicky-bird. It again has enlivened a day for me. I never tire of hearing it. But now, I want to hear something else, Chief"—she turned to him deferentially. "Madge told me while you were gone what had occurred. Did you find out anything more?"

I tossed her a mental tribute. She had cut the trivial conversation short just as I guessed it was proving unbearable to my father. And she had subtly challenged the determination he had expressed to me of conferring only with Harry Underwood and Dicky about the serious situation which the sinister threat of the Chinese had brought to us.

My father's poise almost deserted him.

"Why—yes I did," he said slowly. "But—it isn't necessary to trouble you and Margaret with it."

Lillian rose and going over to him took him by the lapels of his coat and gave him an affectionate little shake, a little endearment which we both often give him, but which I am sure no one else would attempt in the face of his austere dignity.

"No use, Chief," she said flippantly but with a warning note of earnestness in her voice. "You mustn't make a stag party out of this conference. Madge and I are declaring ourselves in on it."

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

SATURDAY. And still cold enough to keep the snow from melting. I don't care. A fella oughtn't to care about anything he can't help. The whole bunch was out to the barn almost as soon as I had let Jubilee down and got into my short britches and went out, and when I had milked and tooken the milk in and strained it and come out after breakfast to clean the stable like I do every Saturday, the bunch helped me and then we went out in the yard and shoveled snow in a big heap on the high side of the barn till we got it almost as high as the barn door, then I climb up on top of the barn and just as I was going to jump my mother came to the door and hollered for me to get down off the barn at once, so I jumped, and when I jumped she screamed. The jump didn't hurt me at all, and I got out of the snow in which I was almost buried and ran in the house, and my mother was setting in a chair and my ant was holding some camphor to her nose to smell of, and my ant called me a limb of satan and my mother called me her darling and asted me to promise to never do that again, so I promised; but my ant said, "Huh—he'll find some other way to break his neck." I said when it was broke she wouldn't have to wash it any more. She told me to stay in the house the rest of the day and take care of Annabelle Lee, and I was setting on the floor with her when the bunch began to holler for me to come on out. So finely my mother said, "For heaven sake go on out and take those Indians away from here!" And she gave me a hunk of hot bread and butter and pushed me out the door. That was one time a bunch came in handy. Red said his mother wasn't home, so we all went up there and his married sister was there taking care of things, and his father is a huckster and always has apples and things he hasn't hucked yet in the cellar, so we got some apples and put them on top of the stove and baked them till the juice was boiling out of them. I had just put on my mitten and took mine off the stove when the Last Bag of Tripe came in, and he said, "You know me, Thomas. Gimme a bite." So I held the apple and he opened his face like it was split half in two, and I was trying to hold the apple so he wouldn't take too big a bite when Feeble hit my elbow and pushed the whole apple in his face, and his eyes popped and tears ran down his cheeks and he couldn't get the apple out, and Red's sister had to hold him and dig it out with a fork. She looked in his mouth when he had wrenched it out with cold water, an she said it [illegible] blister. I told him I was sorry. He looked supprized. He thought I was sorry he got hurt. I was sorry it wouldn't blister.
